About the artwork

This figurative surreal painting explores femininity through movement, fluidity, and inner strength. The female form emerges not as a fixed presence, but as a living rhythm shaped by emotion, memory, and transformation. Flowing lines and layered colors create a sense of motion that blurs the boundary between body and atmosphere.

The absence of detailed facial features allows the viewer to project their own narrative, making the figure both intimate and universal. Influenced by symbolism and expressive abstraction, the work reflects themes of becoming, resilience, and the quiet power carried within softness.

Painted intuitively, the composition prioritizes emotional truth over realism, inviting contemplation rather than explanation.
