About the artwork

Set against a luminous white canvas, Birds They Fly explores the fleeting presence and movement of birds through an abstract language. Forms in blue, green, and touches of yellow gather at the center, with delicate traces of black creating rhythm and contrast. The composition suggests birds in flight without depicting them literally, allowing the shapes to emerge and dissolve within the open space of the canvas. Part of the Soft Impact series, the work balances movement and stillness, presence and lightness.
