About the artwork

Part of The Scribe*, a multimedia installation*

Screen-printed at the top frieze of a mural, these "writing fairies" function as mythic witnesses to women's intellectual labor — keepers and transmitters of sacred text across generations. The gold feathers carry the resonance of writing as a sacred and precious act. At the installation's heart, Mother Hafsa scribes the Qur'an. The Arabic word kalima ("word") anchors the figures to the act of language itself, asserting that the guardianship of knowledge is not incidental but divine.
