About the artwork

The Black Tulip draws inspiration from The Black Tulip by Alexandre Dumas, reinterpreting the rare flower as a metaphor for human endurance and quiet determination. The tulip becomes a stand-in for a lived struggle, an individual moving through uncertainty while still pursuing meaning, beauty, and inner clarity. Rather than a simple botanical rarity, it is shaped as a psychological and emotional symbol, where fragility and strength coexist. The work reflects the idea that even within limitation and pressure, something singular and powerful can emerge, carrying traces of resilience and transformation.
